GLOPAC welcomes visiting fellows of the 26th group

Tokyo, Aug.-Sep. 2025

The GLOPAC welcomed one official each from insurance authorities in 11 countries as its 26th visiting fellows. The fellows explored a wide range of topics related to insurance regulation and supervision from various perspectives. This time, participants came from Indonesia, Thailand, the Philippines, Vietnam, Malaysia, Cambodia, Laos, India, Argentina, Kazakhstan, and Saudi Arabia. The GLOPAC of Japan FSA has welcomed 243 visiting fellows from 38 jurisdictions so far.

The fellows met with FSA Commissioner Mr. Ito and Vice Minister for International Affairs Mr. Miyoshi, expressing their gratitude for the opportunity to participate in the program. The eight-business-day program began on August 26 and successfully concluded on September 4.

Meet our visiting fellows

The GLOPAC course was exceptionally well-designed, with content that aligned perfectly with both my professional responsibilities and personal interests. Throughout the program, I gained valuable insights into legal frameworks and supervisory practices, learning not only from Japan's experiences but also from the diverse perspectives of other countries. Beyond the academic lessons, this course offered a wonderful opportunity to build a global professional network. I am grateful for the friendships and connections formed, and I am confident that we will continue to support each other and collaborate in the future.

This experience has truly broadened my horizons, both professionally and personally.

Ms. Anis Farhana Ahmad Fuad

Bank Negara Malaysia

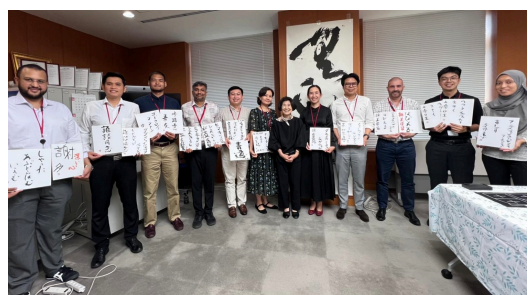

Since arriving, we've felt the warmth, generosity, and hospitality of Japan. This made our visit not only a time of learning but also a truly unforgettable memory. Through program lectures and discussions, we deepened our understanding of Japan's vision, its insurance market, and its growing influence regionally and globally.

The insights shared with us are invaluable and will stay with us long after we return home. Even more meaningful than the knowledge gained is the spirit of friendship and goodwill we felt throughout the visit. This human connection—the willingness to welcome, host, and engage—builds the strongest bridges between people and nations. We'll carry the lessons and warm memories from our time in Japan, and look forward to further strengthening our friendship.

Mr. Abdulrahman Shatta

Insurance Authority (Saudi Arabia)

The program covered a broad spectrum of topics, including Japan's approach to insurance regulation and supervision, climate-related risks such as the natural disaster protection gap, and responses to digitalization. Discussions also included the approaches and challenges faced by the fellows' respective jurisdictions.

A total of 16 lectures were delivered—eight by FSA officials and eight by external experts. In addition to lectures, the program featured group discussions and case study sessions, encouraging fellows to actively think and speak rather than passively listen.

The fellows also had opportunities to experience Japanese culture through Japanese language lessons, calligraphy workshops, and visits to traditional sites such as Asakusa.

Despite the lingering summer heat, the weather remained favorable, and all participants were able to enjoy the outings in good health—an especially fortunate outcome.
