

Various structural transformations have taken place in capital markets in recent years, including an increase in passive investment, decline in IPO and the rise of Asian equity markets. In response, various initiatives are being driven forward, such as the revision of G20/OECD Principles of Corporate Governance in 2015.

On this occasion, the Financial Services Agency and the OECD will jointly host a seminar to address experiences including the progress made and the challenges we confront with implementing the G20/OECD Principles at national level, as well as to discuss the future of corporate governance.
